PRESS RELEASE

Pursuant to the directives of the Prime Minister, Head of Government formulated in letter No.B9/a-16/SG/PM of 16 September 2019, and in compliance with provisions of article 56 (1 and 2) of decree No.2000/696/PM of 13 September 2000 to lay down the general scheme of government competitive examinations,

The Minister of the Public Service and Administrative Reform has signed orders for the final admission of candidates on the waiting lists of results of various competitive entrance examinations into the National School of Administration and Magistracy (ENAM), to replace thirteen candidates finally declared successful to more than one competitive examination, who have made the final selection of their sections and produced withdrawal letters.

At the same time, the Prime Minister, Head of Government has exceptionally authorised, for the 2019-2020 academic year, the recruitment of 119 (one hundred and nineteen) additional candidates subject to the effective fulfilment of all admission criteria as stipulated by the regulations in force. In that respect, those concerned by this measure are candidates who were declared successful in the written part of these examinations, went in for the oral part and obtained the required marks to be eligible, but were not selected due to the limited number of places available initially.

It is worth noting that this special measure is in line with the constant will of the Head of State to always listen attentively to the concerns raised by his young compatriots who are facing enormous difficulties, and massively seeking employment into the Public Service, so as to bring through their career, a significant contribution to our nation building. This exceptional measure that comes after special recruitments authorised by the President of the Republic these past years, is another manifestation of his constant desire to promote youth employment, once the economic situation allows it.

The Minister of the Public Service and Administrative Reform therefore invites the candidates concerned to report at the National School of Administration and Magistracy (ENAM), on Monday 23 September 2019 at 7 : 30 am to fulfil the necessary administrative formalities./-
